

I'm a high-energy working mama with two kids, still trying to find that work/mom/wife balance and if you happen to find it, please let me know. I'm married to my 8th grade sweetheart, Steve and have saved every single movie ticket we've ever been to. Yep, twenty-six years together and he still gives me all the butterflies. My weakness is a chocolate frosted Pop Tart straight out the box, no need to even toast it. Although sipping tequila + La Croix poolside is a close second. I grew up with the Florida sand between my toes and the sun on my face, hence my need for extremely over priced anti-aging products these days. Hello 40.

After years of people asking me where I got my shirt + living room paint color and the recipe to my favorite appetizer. I decided maybe there were people out there that would read this besides my mom. Which lead to me consigning my clothes online and saving enough money to build an online space where I could share all the things in my life that I truly love.

I'm a girls girl that's found the perfect white tee, a dinner your kids will actually eat and the mother of all under eye concealers. And if there's something I haven't found, you'll be along for the ride. My hope is to inspire you, be your daily comic relief and that best girlfriend you really never knew you needed.

Let's don't forget, it's a lifestyle website, but not a perfectly styled life. Sure, the pictures are real pretty, but there will be plenty of early school drop-off's that I'll be talking to you via instastories in my car without a bra on. Why? Well, because that's what friends do and it's real life.
